Edgar L. Wakeman Telegraphs Shows of His Presence in Louisville, Ky.

Reported That the Lawsuit Did Not Detain Him, But He Will Return to Chicago.

Yesterday's Pleas and Examinations Taken This Fact Was Known—His Bail, $5k.

The following telegram was received at the office of the Corporation Counsel this morning:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 27.—[Special.] The suit I expect to be in Chicago Thursday. Do not be surprised that I fail to return in person. Will get there sooner if possible.

E. L. WAKEMAN.

Proceedings instituted on the following assembly of the United States Court, and against him a warrant to appear before the commissioner under the charge of using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, were taken yesterday afternoon. The prisoner was in court all day long, and during the noon hour was visited by a number of friends, who came to see him. The warrant was issued by Commissioner Hoyne on the affidavit of Postmaster Edwin Walker, who took a hand in the case himself. Inspector Stuart was also present, and after the warrant was issued Mr. Walker and Mr. Stuart left for Louisville, where they arrived last night. Mr. Wakeman was not in court when the case was called, but was represented by his attorneys, Messrs. Lyman & Lyman. Mr. Wakeman's bail was fixed at $5,000, and was furnished by Mr. Lyman. The bail bond was signed by Edgar L. Wakeman, Chicago, and Edwin Walker, Washington, D. C. The bail bond was approved by Commissioner Hoyne, and Mr. Wakeman was released from custody. The bail bond was filed with the clerk of the United States Court.

Mr. Wakeman, who is the head of the Wakeman Manufacturing Company, Chicago, and Wakeman & Co., Louisville, Ky., is charged with using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud. The scheme is alleged to be the sale of stock in the Wakeman Manufacturing Company, which is alleged to be worthless. The stock was sold at $1 per share, and the company is alleged to have been capitalized at $1,000,000. The stock was sold by agents, who were paid a commission of 50 per cent on the sales. The agents were also given a bonus of stock for every share sold. The stock was sold by agents in Chicago and Louisville, and in other cities in the United States, and people who bought the stock were brought to Chicago to have the stock transferred and given to them. The stock was sold from the first of last March to the present time, and the company is alleged to have received $100,000 from the sale of stock. The company is alleged to have paid out $50,000 in commissions, leaving $50,000 for the company. The company is alleged to have paid out $50,000 in commissions, leaving $50,000 for the company. The company is alleged to have paid out $50,000 in commissions, leaving $50,000 for the company.

Proceedings at Ann Arbor, Mich., the Forty-fourth Annual Meeting.

Session of the Society for the Promotion of Acronautical Science and the Astronautical Club.

Dr. Alex Wil. Delivers an Address of Welcome This Morning—The Day's Program.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—On the last train report in preparation for the forty-fourth annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Thousands of addresses of all sorts have been arriving during the day, and have been greeted with delight by the local committee in fact as they arrived. A great delegation (nearly two hundred) from Buffalo this morning brought large numbers of learned men, and the last of the assistants is at work this afternoon.

The members assembled bell that morning. The Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science began its meeting, also the Society for the Study of the Insect Injurious to Vegetation, and the Section of Agriculture met and in charge of their regular work. The meeting office at Mrs. H. S. Frost, U. S. C., Secretary of the Biological Farm and experiment station, Geneva, N. Y.; D. A. Jones, B. S. C., Professor of Agriculture in the Agricultural College of Mississippi, in long charge. Many sessions are planned, and in the necessary large attendance. The Dean of the morning hours, "The influence of Locality on Fruit," by J. H. Thomas, A. M., of the County Institution, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; "The Dandelion and the Locusts," by S. Hopkins, A. M., B. S., Director of the New York experimental station at Geneva, a discussion on the model and a new grass around the morning's work.

In the afternoon the main question was the discussion of agriculture as science. The discussion of the day followed by a number of papers, by W. J. Beal, Professor of Botany and in the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and one on "The Elements and Its Relations Agricultural Research"; S. D. Averill, Professor of Agriculture at Clemson's to the same institution on "The Growing of Silk in the United States"; L. Clement, Professor of Agricultural Chemistry at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., on "The Leguminous Plants"; C. C. Georgeson, Professor of Horticulture at Kansas Agricultural College, Manhattan, on "Grasses of Kansas"; E. W. Stanley, Professor of Agriculture at the University of California at Berkeley, on "Some Interesting Facts of Plant Life"; W. A. Kent, Professor of Horticulture at the Agricultural College, Lansing, Mich., on "Fruits of Kansas."

A business meeting was held in the evening at which the officers were elected.

The Entomological Club appointed this afternoon for a joint conference on the locusts this afternoon of the day. Dr. John B. Smith, Rutgers, N.J., discussed the second Prof. Smith's address, after which the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: Prof. C. V. Riley, Albany, N. Y., President; S. H. Scudder, Washington, D. C., Vice-President; John B. Smith, Brooklyn, N. Y., Secretary. The papers of several scientific societies were read, and also a supplemental sheet of Dr. William Lehmann, late State Entomologist of Illinois, by Dr. S. H. Scudder. The club then adjourned to meet tomorrow afternoon.

SOCIETY PROGRAM.

Tomorrow is the great day, as it will witness the formal opening by the Vice-Admiral meeting. The sessions will gather in University Hall in the morning, and will be called to order by the acting President, Prof. C. E. Lester of Philadelphia, who will then resign the chair to the President-elect, Prof. H. S. Carhart of Ann Arbor, professor of science and then an address by Gov. H. S. Pingree, Judge Thomas M. Cooley, President Daniel C. Gilman, and Mayor John Kaye in behalf of the State, local scientific, university, and city, to which response will be made by President Dwight. Several section business will then be transacted, after which the various sections will meet, there to organize from their presiding officers, when papers and committees, and so forth.

In the evening the acting President delivers the address, a reception will be tendered each morning prizes have of science, announcements of the local committee, and time of program to be read during the day.

THE LAWS DELAY.

A Formidable Evil Against Which the People are Crying Out.

Who Is to Blame, and Who Are Responsible for That Crime.

How Their Number Suggested by a Committee of the American Bar Association.

The following are the main points in the report of the special committee consisting of Hon. Andrew Hunt and John C. Ropes, submitted to the American Bar Association at its annual meeting on the question whether the present delay and uncertainty in judicial administration can be lessened, and if so, by what means:

The committee discover that delay and uncertainty in the administration of justice in civil and criminal actions is unfortunately too true. The evil is one that has a manifold and most unfortunate influence upon the public mind, in almost private and daily life, and upon the whole body politic. Every one knows that much "right, or delay or gain of justice to be made," and in many of the most important litigations that could have been the richest prizes that Fortune ever offered to the successful litigant, the prize has been lost by the delay of justice. Of the 17 [illegible] in the city of New York, [illegible] years old, [illegible] are over 5 years old, [illegible] are over 10 years old, and [illegible] are over 15 years old. [illegible] of the causes which have been pending for more than 5 years, [illegible] have been pending for more than 10 years, and [illegible] have been pending for more than 15 years. [illegible] of the causes which have been pending for more than 5 years, [illegible] have been pending for more than 10 years, and [illegible] have been pending for more than 15 years.

The committee then considered the question, What are the causes of the delay and uncertainty complained of?

1. What is the extent of the delay and uncertainty complained of?
2. What are the causes?
3. What are the remedies?

[illegible] of the delay and uncertainty complained of.

A comparison of the average length of a case before a jury in the different States, the average time from the commencement of the case to the time of trial, and the number of cases tried in a year, and of the number of cases pending at the end of the year, in proportion to the number tried, the greatest average number of cases pending at the end of the year in proportion to the number tried, and the greatest average length of time between the commencement of the case and the time of trial, are found in the State of New York. In the State of Pennsylvania, which, next to New York, has the largest number of cases tried, the average length of time between the commencement of the case and the time of trial is much less than in New York, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried. In the State of Massachusetts, which has a population nearly as large as that of Pennsylvania, the number of cases tried is much less than in Pennsylvania, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried. In the State of Connecticut, which has a population nearly as large as that of Massachusetts, the number of cases tried is much less than in Massachusetts, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried. In the State of Rhode Island, which has a population nearly as large as that of Connecticut, the number of cases tried is much less than in Connecticut, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried. In the State of New Hampshire, which has a population nearly as large as that of Rhode Island, the number of cases tried is much less than in Rhode Island, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried. In the State of Vermont, which has a population nearly as large as that of New Hampshire, the number of cases tried is much less than in New Hampshire, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried. In the State of Maine, which has a population nearly as large as that of Vermont, the number of cases tried is much less than in Vermont, and the number of cases pending at the end of the year is much less in proportion to the number tried.

[illegible] of the causes which have been pending for more than 5 years, [illegible] have been pending for more than 10 years, and [illegible] have been pending for more than 15 years.
